Chennai: Chennai's engineering colleges have secured the top 10 spots among the colleges affiliated to Anna University based on the students' performance.

However, the university officials said the list did not reflect the overall ranking as it was based on the number of rank holders and their aggregate marks of the eight semesters put together. The aggregate marks secured by the students are calculated as cumulative grade points average (CGPA) leading to the ranks.

Anna University controller of examinations, G V Uma, said 384 colleges figured in the overall list as only those students who had fulfilled the requirements of the university were eligible to be placed on the list.

"The students who have cleared their exams in their first attempt, who were eligible for first class and distinction and those who have not taken any breaks in between their academic period have been placed on this list," she said.

This ranks have been declared ahead of the university's convocation on December 11. "The rank holders have been categorised based on their academic performance," said university officials.

An overall ranking of colleges would be released later, in which it would analyse quality of colleges, faculty standards, research and so on, they added.
